

VLP Attorneys Timothy Bowers and Cara Hupprich Coauthored an Article Entitled “New Shareholder Proposal Rules Balance Interests Against Cost” in the Daily Journal

Timothy R. Bowers, Managing Partner of VLP and a member of the firm’s Executive Committee, and Cara L. Hupprich, Counsel in the firm’s Corporate Group, coauthored an article entitled “New shareholder proposal rules balance interests against cost” published on October 8, 2020 in the Daily Journal.

The article examines the new rules adopted by the SEC with respect to the shareholder proposal submissions and contrasts the benefits of cost savings and resource allocation for the company against the negative impact these rules may have on the ability for smaller shareholders to fully participate in the proxy process.

Click here to read the article.